Community Development Action Plan

August 2025

Foreword

The confluence of two rivers lies at the heart of Vacy's Story of Place. Grinding stones and trees bearing canoe-shaped scars endure as quiet witnesses to an ancient tradition of gathering here and of hands and hearts acting in service to their community.

Today, that legacy endures, drawing people to this meeting point of waters and lives. You can see it at the Farmers Hotel on a Thursday night, the General Store with a coffee in hand on a morning, the school at the end of the day, and the hall when the car park spills out onto the street. Whether it's showing up at a community group meeting or simply having a chat, all around are people who care about this place and about each other.

The Vacy Community Development Plan, aka Vacy Village Vision, is what happens when community is given back permission to help draw the map. It's been shaped by our schoolchildren, community workshops, brainstorm sessions, historical walks, online surveys, emails, ideas box submissions, local disaster response meetings, and thoughtful comments on social media. Hundreds of voices have been woven together.

A heartfelt thank you to everyone — young and old — who has taken the time to share their dreams for Vacy. Your hopes, your stories, your ideas have helped light the path forward. Huge thanks also to the teens and adults who have already jumped in with curiosity and creativity, beginning to explore what turning these goals into action could look like on the ground. There's no dust settling here!

Of course, none of this would have been possible without the framework, backing and encouragement of Rural Aid and the Bank of I.D.E.A.S., and a supportive Dungog Shire Council. From all of us and the generations that will continue to benefit down the road, thank you.

For more details, updates, and information on how to get involved, head to the Twin Rivers Community Hub website at www.twinrivers.au. Your next idea or helping hand could be what brings the next part of the vision to life. And whether you're new or have been here forever but haven't yet had your say on the map — don't worry. This belongs to all of us, and there will always be room to pull up an extra chair.

Our Story

Vacy is a small village nestled in the picturesque Paterson Valley within the Dungog Shire, Hunter Region of New South Wales. Located at the junction of the Paterson and Allyn Rivers, it is known for its strong agricultural roots, scenery and community connections.

Aboriginal peoples have populated the Paterson Valley for thousands of years. Local historian Dr Brian Walsh summarises this enduring connection with these words: “Their history is one of relentless change. It is a dynamic history marked by continuous and at times dramatic changes in climate, sea level, landscape, population, social organisation, groupings, territories, lifestyle, diet and use of tools.”

When Europeans arrived from the early 1800s, they found the Paterson Valley home to the Worimi (Saltwater People), the Wonnarua (Freshwater People), and the Gringai towards the mountains.

The first record of the Vacy locality comes from Robert Brown, the botanist accompanying Lieutenant Colonel William Paterson’s 1804 expedition, who recorded “the country is everywhere hilly, but the valleys extensive and apparently all thinly wooded forest land.” It was into this thinly wooded grassland that European settlers arrived in the 1820s, leading to the displacement of the Aboriginal people. They brought sheep and cattle to graze the grasslands and soon cleared the thick forest from the river flats to grow crops.

Three members of the Cory family from Devon and Cornwall were granted land and also purchased additional property, leaving an indelible imprint on the district. One family member named his property on the south side of the Paterson River “Vacy,” after the house in Cornwall where he was born. This was to become the village of Vacy.

Because Cory’s Vacy property was at a logical place for settlers further up the valley to cross the Paterson River, a village grew to service travellers and the local area. It was initially called Clarke’s Crossing, but in time became known as Vacy. However, since all the land was owned by the Cory family, it remained a private village—in fact, one of Australia’s most enduring private villages.

The first church began in 1849, a hotel was built in 1858, a school was established in 1859, a post office opened in 1860, and a store was operating by 1868. By 1900, the village had a butcher’s shop and School of Arts. It remained a private village until 1927, when the entire Vacy estate was sold.

Today, despite its small size, Vacy remains a thriving community with a strong social fabric. The Vacy School of Arts Hall, Farmers’ Hotel, Vacy Sportsground, Vacy General Store and Motel restaurant continue to serve as gathering points for community members. Annual events such as the Vacy Country Carnival bring locals and visitors together in celebration of the town’s unique character and serve, as stated in its promotional materials, “as a reminder of our community’s rich heritage and the enduring power of food to bring us together.” The historic Vacy Bridge, built in 1898, and numerous other heritage sites provide a tangible link to the village’s past.

Just as the river connects the villages of Gresford, Vacy and Paterson, so too are they joined by a shared culture of contributing, with many shared organisations, activities and events. Vacy’s proximity to larger centres like Maitland and Newcastle, also means that residents can enjoy a rural lifestyle while still having access to city conveniences and employment opportunities.

Our Vision

A Vision Statement is a vivid description of what our community aspires to become, without its current barriers, but tied to what we value as a community.

The statement below is our intended outcome:

Where rivers meet,
so do we.
Hands-on, hearts
open, deeply connected to the land & each other.

Our Guiding Values

Guiding values are the fundamental, moral, and ethical beliefs that we share as a community. They represent core principles and capture what our community considers important. They help foster trust, respect, collaboration, and unity.

The following four guiding values and attitudes provide the context for our community's identified actions and initiatives, namely:

- 1. We know the easiest way to have a good neighbour is to be one.
- 2. We do more when we work together and it's a hell of a lot more fun!
- 3. We take care of our country, because it takes care of us.
- 4. We respect the voices of the old and the young, it's where wisdom meets wonder.

Our Goals

Community goals are broad statements of intent that direct our efforts towards accomplishing our vision in line with our guiding principles.

Below are the community goals which guide our community aspirations, namely:

- Foster connection through place and play by transforming shared spaces into lively and welcoming hubs that bring people together.
- Empower local kids by creating hands-on chances to explore, lead, and grow through outdoor adventure and increasing opportunities for genuine input.
- Build resilience by restoring natural systems, sharing knowledge, and building the social capital needed to proactively mitigate the risk of fire, flood, and whatever comes next.
- Create a model of council-community collaboration that's bold, clear-eyed, and refuses to settle for token gestures.
- Keep the conversation flowing and the doors open, so everyone stays in the loop and no one feels left out.
- Strengthen collaboration by getting creative around how we connect, communicate and support one another across the 3 villages (Vacy, Paterson and Gresford).

Our Challenges

Like many small inland rural communities, our community needs to respond creatively to a series of demographic, social, economic and environmental challenges. These issues include:

- Poor road conditions (especially potholes)
- Limited and uninspired village signage and way finding
- Uninviting and poorly maintained public toilets
- Limited vehicle access to the river and few riverside activities, despite the river being a key community connection
- Very limited options for getting home safely from pubs, restaurants, and events after a night out, raising concerns about normalising unsafe behaviours among young people
- Closure and impending sale of St. John's Church
- Increasing frequency and severity of extreme weather events (floods, droughts, bushfires) with impacts including ongoing riverbank erosion
- Decline in operational farms and financial pressures on farmers and what this means for farming families and local food security
- Limited, tired community facilities and uninspiring main street appearance (except for the beautiful new oval fencing)
- Failure to plan for active transport within the village and surrounding areas, especially connectivity for walking, cycling, and horse riding
- Insufficient Council investment in local infrastructure despite housing growth, with a clear Dungog-centric focus in decision-making
- Lack of Vacy-specific community group to advocate for the community at Council, to help drive investment in local infrastructure and green space that keeps pace with population growth
- Housing developments growth requires a robust strategy to preserve small-town character and strong community ties
- At times volunteer fatigue, and lack of recognition for efforts
- Limited local employment and childcare options
- Rising cost of living and increasing insurance costs for community events and activities
- High rates of wildlife road fatalities
- Limited retail sector with as yet unrealised potential to lead increased choice with local food/products
- Steeply rising property prices especially post-COVID, making it harder for younger family members to buy homes locally
- Absence of a formal welcome or integration strategy for new residents and limited nightlife for those seeking to meet new people

Acknowledgements

The formulation of this 'Community Development Action Plan' was initiated and coordinated by the Vacy Community Builders Team and enabled by Rural Aid as part of their commitment to supporting Australia's small rural towns. The formulation of the Plan was undertaken by Peter Kenyon (Bank of I.D.E.A.S.) with assistance from Steph Walsh (Rural Aid) and Jim Doyle (Rural Aid - Community Connector). Special thanks to the many passionate community members and organisations, especially Vacy Public School, who gave so generously of their time, wisdom, and experience.

We respectfully acknowledge the Wonnarua, Gringai and Worimi Peoples as the traditional custodians and First People of the lands which comprise the township of Vacy and its districts. We pay our respects to the Elders past, present and future for they hold the memories, the traditions, the culture and hopes of the Wonnarua, Gringai and Worimi Peoples.

Thanks also to David Williams, Penny Evans, Tyler Ineson, Gerard Spinks and others for generously allowing the use of their photographs.
